

God 's Wrath, Death, Two States of Love

Arshad Khan

Assistant Professor

Deptt. of English

S R A P College Bara Chakia

East Champaran, Bihar, India

ak2019dbg@gmail.com

God 's Wrath

The Moon tells the Earth with frightening smile

The Earth looks up the Sky with unwanted crime

The Sun is singing threatening rime

.The Ocean is boiling in bloody time

Warn the humans Doom's Day

The sinners relentlessly slay

Evils of Hell raise their hands

To call the offenders to cite the last bands

Each crime experiences lancinating pain

The wrath of God blooms in fierce flame

Neither compassion nor mercy claim

.And the existence of human will end in vain

Death

If the Death be an eternal truth
?Do we need to be afraid
Growth and decay is transmitted into
Fire and dust
All fortunes left that was earthly lust
.Only the decay bodies meet in a silvery sheet

Knowing death's smiles is equal
It sings catastrophic songs in sequel
?Do we need to be afraid
If it be so universal
Accept it as we accept life
.Breaking all doubts and strife

Death does not bring colour in Kings or Fakirs
?Does it recall any name and fame
If the Death be an eternal truth
?Do we need to be afraid

Two States of Love

Experience excellently speaks

Why humans trap between

?Two states of Love

One stars from face

Other asks for race

Love stars from heart

Ends with two similar souls

Filling its desires and goals

The eyes are in search of glazing face

After all it's not the matter of race

Finally, a conclusion answers for such complicated case

Oh! dear it's not the matter of race

.It's all about the letter of the face